Short Answers

There are two service member positions available.

- Food Education Service Members, the majority of our cohort, focus on offering students hands-on experiences growing, cooking, tasting and learning about food that supports their nourishment and development.
- School Nutrition Service Members are a small cohort of service members placed at a district level who are focused on supporting goals around nourishing meals, engaging the school community and supporting learning opportunities around food that is fresh, locally sourced and culturally relevant.

We encourage you to read through the job descriptions (linked on our website) to determine which position you'd like to pursue.

We know that writing isn't everyone's strong suit or preferred form of expression, so you have the option to attach a multimedia response to any of the questions below instead of writing. (For example: online video or audio file, PowerPoint, Keynote, or Prezi presentation, photographs, blogs, excerpts from papers or lesson plans, etc.)

- 1. Tell us what excites you about a year of service with FoodCorps. In your response, you may also include if you are interested in the Food Education and/or School Nutrition position.*
- 2. Why do you believe that free and reduced-price nourishing school meals are needed? Why is the work of FoodCorps needed? In your response, please share how your own racial and gender identity will shape your approach to your work and service year.*

3. For returning service members only:
- Describe your experience with your service community. What has been the biggest challenge? The biggest lesson?
 - How have you been successful in engaging with communities around a common goal during your time at FoodCorps?

4. Other Information - Since we're just getting to know you, we might have missed something! Is there anything else you'd like us to know about why you're a great fit for FoodCorps?
