

Veggie Wraps

THEME: PREPARING NOURISHING FOOD

ESSENTIAL QUESTION

How can we use vegetables to make a nourishing snack?

LEARNING OBJECTIVE

✓ Students will be able to combine ingredients to make a nourishing snack.

CONCEPTS

nourishing snack ingredient sharing vegetable

ENGAGING THE CLASSROOM TEACHER

- During Action Step 3, an alternative is to suggest that the teacher make the wrap following your verbal instructions.
- During Action Step 4, suggest that the teacher help students wash their hands while you distribute trays with materials to table groups.
- During Action Step 5, suggest that the teacher help students who need additional support as they make their veggie wraps.
- During Action Step 6, encourage the teacher to model trying new things by eating the snack alongside the students.

LESSON DESCRIPTION

In this lesson, students listen to a read-aloud about the wonderful variety of vegetables, and they share ingredients to create veggie wraps with a spread such as hummus. See the lesson Plant Part Wraps for a cooking lesson that focuses on the six plant parts.

MATERIALS

- Rah, Rah, Radishes! by April Pulley Sayre
- 3–4 vegetables students may not be familiar with to “show and tell”

Tray with the following for each group of 4–6 students:

- Whole wheat or rice flour tortillas (one for each student)
- 3 or more bowls, each filled with a different chopped or grated vegetable, such as cauliflower, bell peppers, cucumbers, cherry tomatoes, romaine lettuce, shredded beet or carrot, or whatever is available and in season
- Pair of mini tongs for each bowl
- 2 16 oz tubs of hummus, cream cheese, or other spread, enough for approximately 1 tablespoon for each student
- 1–2 plastic knives
- 1 whole, intact sample of each of the vegetables for demonstration
- Plate for each student
- Materials for cleanup

PREPARATION

- › Cut up several types of vegetables, differing in color and texture, for students to place in their veggie wraps.

- › Prepare trays for each group as well as a tray of the whole vegetables.

ACTION STEPS

1. Discussing: Gather students in a circle and ask, What is a vegetable? Then ask students to name as many vegetables as they can. Pass around several different vegetables (that students may not be familiar with) to feel and observe. (5 min.)

2. Reading: Read a book about a variety of vegetables, such as Rah, Rah, Radishes! by April Pulley Sayre. As you're reading, ask students to raise a quiet hand when they hear the name of a vegetable they've eaten and to put their hand on their head when they hear about a vegetable for the first time. While you're still in a circle, show students each of the vegetables you brought for the tasting, and see if they can identify them. Pass them around the circle, allowing students to touch and smell them, but instructing them to be gentle and not to taste them. Explain to students that today you're going to be making a snack using different vegetables. (10 min.)

3. Demonstrate Making a Veggie Wrap:

Model the process of making a veggie wrap. If the classroom has a document camera, it can be helpful to project your actions on the screen. First use a plastic knife to spread some hummus (or other spread) on the wrap, showing students you only need a little. If using hummus, share that hummus is a flavorful dip made primarily from beans. Then demonstrate adding only one or two pieces of each veggie on top and rolling it up. Emphasize sharing and only taking a small amount so there's enough to go around. (5 min.)

4. Hand-Washing Break: This is a good time to distribute trays to table groups. (5 min.)

5. Making Veggie Wraps: Have students return to their tables and instruct them to place one tortilla on their plate. Walk them through each step. Circulate through the room, providing support to those who need it and guiding students to share and pass the tongs to their neighbors. (10 min.)

6. Tasting: Have students wait until everyone has created their veggie wraps before tasting. (5 min.)

REFLECTION

Have students discuss the following questions in small groups, then share with the class: (5 min.)

Social and emotional learning

- Ask yourself: Did I take turns and share with my classmates?

Check for understanding

- How would you describe the taste of your veggie wrap?
- What were the names of the vegetables we put into our veggie wraps?

- What were the colors of the vegetables we put into our veggie wraps?
- What else would taste good in our veggie wraps? (You might consider raw and cooked vegetables, other dips, etc.)
- Who would you like to make this snack for and why?

ADAPTATIONS

Art Extension: Have students create a visual recipe by drawing all the ingredients they put in their veggie wrap inside a circle to represent the tortilla.

Less Resource-Intensive Option: If tortillas are too expensive or hard to find, consider making your snack on large crackers.

Upper-Grade Variation: If you'd like to make a more involved recipe, use the setup for cooking vegetables in the lesson Sauté to have students make rainbow tacos or fajitas.
